Then and Now

NOW—Stereo by Anthony DiDonato, Nov. 1980.

The THEN & NOW views for this issue are from John Waldmuth (then) and Anthony Di Donato (now). The Subject is the Ohio State Building, constructed for the Ohio exhibit at the 1876 Centennial Exhibition in Philadelphia's Fairmont Park. It is now the only surviving "state" building from the exhibition, and seemed a good choice for this feature since the NSA is headquartered in Ohio.

Do other readers have any THEN & NOW pairs of stereo views? Comic, historical, or scenic subjects are all welcome. Send your pairs with a brief description to THEN & NOW, c/o John Dennis, 4329 E. 64th, Portland, OR 97206.

Cover C.E. Watkins' traveling wagon. The famous photographer made several trips to several western states. One in the winter of 1884-85 resulted in the "E" series of views, according to Peter Palmquist's feature article, "Watkins' E-Series—the Columbia River Gorge and Yellowstone".
